NOTIFICATION

School of Family Health Studies

Kerala University of Health Sciences, Kozhikode

(in collaboration with Multidisciplinary Research Unit, DHR, Government Medical College, Kozhikode)

One-Day Training Program on Molecular Diagnostic Techniques

With the vastly improved diagnostic armamentarium including molecular diagnostic techniques available today, it is essential to be conversant with the choice, interpretation and scope to obtain best patient outcomes, optimizing resource and time constraints. Multidisciplinary collaboration has the potential to lead to translational research with far reaching benefits to patients and their families. The program will be jointly conducted by the School of Family Health Studies, KUHS and the Department of Health Research-Multidisciplinary Research Unit (Govt of India, supported facility) at Government Medical College, Kozhikode.

This laboratory immersion program bridges clinical decision-making with diagnostic laboratory workflows. It emphasizes the complete diagnostic journey from sample collection to final report with focus on clinical relevance, quality assurance, interpretation and limitations.
